Art Unit: 1761

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-26 and 34-52 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Reddy et al (US 6406724) in view of Taylor (US 4584199), Nauth et al (US 6110509), and Toravill et al (GB 713251) for the reasons set forth in rejecting the claims in the last office action.

Reddy et al disclose a flavoring system and method of preparing comprising a sulfury-cheddar flavor, a creamy-buttery flavor, and a cheesy flavor as is claimed (see entire patent, especially the claims).

The claims differ as to the addition of a bacteriocin.

Taylor discloses the addition of nisin to cheese products (see entire patent, especially the Abstract).

Nauth et al disclose the use of nisin-producing cultures to stabilize cream cheese (see entire patent, especially the claims)

Toravill et al disclose the use of a starter containing a nisin-producing culture in the manufacture and preservation of cheese (see entire document).

It would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art, at the time the invention was made, to use nisin or a nisin producing culture in that of Reddy et al because the use of nisin in the production of cheese is conventional in the art.

Applicant is using known components to obtain expected results.

Applicant's arguments filed June 6, 2007 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Applicant argues that the prior art does not teach the use of bacteriocins to aid in development of specific flavor components, that the ripening times differ from that of the prior art, and that the results obtained are unexpected.

The prior art clearly teaches the addition of nisin in cheese production. It is further noted that Applicant's use of bacteriocin is "optional" in both the specification and the claims. Applicant does not claim ripening times. In the absence of a showing of unexpected results, Applicant is using known components to obtain no more than expected results.

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
